Part 1 Reading - Brawl Stars: Save the Game

① The Test

In 2017, Supercell was testing Brawl Stars in Canada. The game was new, and the characters were fun.

But after a few days, many players stopped playing. The number of players was going down. The team saw a big problem.

THE PROBLEM

People tried the game → played for a few days → stopped coming back.

② Save It or Stop It?

Supercell has a hard rule. If a new game is not doing well, the company may cancel it.

The team did not want that. They wanted to save Brawl Stars, but small fixes were not enough. They needed a big change.

③ One Big Change

At first, the game used a tall screen. Players held the phone up and played with one hand.

The team tried a new idea. They turned the phone to the side. Now players could use both hands. One circle was for moving, and one was for shooting.

BEFORE	AFTER
Phone up	Phone on its side
One hand	Two hands
Many players left after a few days	More players stayed

BIG DECISION

Keep the old way

Turn the phone and rebuild the controls

④ It Worked

Some old players did not like the change at first. They wanted the old game back.

But more new players kept playing. The number of players went up. The team had found a way to save the game.

In December 2018, Brawl Stars came out around the world. A game that was close to being cancelled became a huge hit.
