On Monday morning, Jonathan put on his bag and looked at his cool face.

"Today, I choose the sigma life," he said. Then his mother called, "Jonathan! You forgot your lunch!"

His cool face was gone. He ran back, took the lunch box, and tried to walk slowly again.

At school, Jonathan saw Kevin near the classroom. Kevin had a problem. His books were all over the floor.

Jonathan looked at Rule 1 in his book: Walk alone. Then he looked at Kevin.

"A real sigma can help," Jonathan said. He picked up Kevin's books and gave them to him.

"Thanks!" Kevin said. "Are you a sigma man now?"

"Yes," Jonathan said. "Please do not tell anyone about the lunch box."

Kevin smiled. "I will not tell anyone."

At lunch, Jonathan sat with Kevin and two new students. They talked about games. Jonathan laughed so hard that milk came out of his nose.

Rule 4 was now dead.

Jonathan opened his book and wrote one new rule: A sigma man can laugh, help others, and be himself.
