Part 1 : Reading - The Sigma Test

On Sunday night, Jonathan made a plan for his first day of junior high school. He wanted to look confident, so he wrote three sigma rules in a small book.

Jonathan's Sigma Rules

1. Be independent. Walk into school alone.
2. Look serious. Do not smile before lunch.
3. Stay in control. Never let a small problem win.

On Monday morning, Jonathan put on his bag and looked in the mirror. He tried his best sigma face. It looked a little like he had a bad stomach, but he did not notice that.

Then his mother called, "Jonathan! You forgot your lunch!"

Jonathan had to make a decision. He could keep walking like a cool sigma man, or he could run back for his chicken lunch. Two seconds later, he was running. Chicken won.

At school, Jonathan saw Kevin near the classroom. Kevin's books were all over the floor. At first, Jonathan tried to ignore him because Rule 1 said to walk alone. Then he stopped. He knew that a responsible person would help.

Jonathan picked up Kevin's books and gave them to him.

"Thanks," Kevin said. "That was cool."

Jonathan smiled. Rule 2 was dead.

At lunch, Jonathan sat with Kevin and two new students. They talked about games. Jonathan laughed so hard that milk came out of his nose. He could not control it. Rule 3 was also dead.

Kevin gave Jonathan a piece of paper. It said, "SIGMA TEST: 0/3. GOOD FRIEND TEST: 3/3."

Jonathan laughed again. Then he wrote a new rule: "A real sigma man can respect people, help them, and laugh at himself."
